Sazani Associates is an international not-for-profit research and development organisation. We specialise in community engagement through participatory research, and the development of integrated programmes for rural development in the UK and overseas.

Our organisation was established in 2005 by an interdisciplinary group of experienced practitioners (academics, consultants, project managers) from all over the world, dedicated to the use of participatory approaches for research, development and learning. Our associates operate in the fields of socio-economic development, natural resource management and education.

Sazani Associates works with local and national governments, NGOs and the private sector in the UK, EU and overseas. We have registered offices in Wales (UK) , Zanzibar (Tanzania) and Belize.

Our Climate change Adaptation Sustainably Aware (CASA) scheme provides a way for you as an individual, organisation, school or company to develop understanding of the real importance of both local and global action against climate change.

CASA enables you to develop and implement social and environmental codes of conduct through a personal connection with the effect of climate change on the most vulnerable in sub Saharan Africa and the Caribbean.

CASA supports community based sustainable livelihood initiatives that contribute towards the Millennium Development Goals to reduce Global Poverty and Climate Change adaptation activities at a community level.

CASA activities include rain water harvesting projects, community waste management schemes, womens cooperative activities, community tree planting, constructing effective sea defences; increasing access to education, and health services.

You can participate in CASA through:

- Becoming a skill share volunteer for 2 weeks to 3 months
- Sponsoring a student teacher to go to University
- Sponsoring one of or a collection of our community projects
