

Learning for Sustainability and Global Social Justice

We offer participants a learning adventure, and an opportunity to build capacity through experiential learning and dialogue.

We aim to move beyond traditional sustainability awareness approaches. If you have a desire to learn more about what sustainability and global citizenship really means for you and for your school or college, this will help you to progress on the journey towards engaging learners with complex global issues.

Our courses focus on:

Awareness – of global issues that affect our daily lives and sustainability models and learning principles.

Engagement – we will introduce tools and approaches such as participation strategies, critical enquiry and decision-making to enhance classroom delivery.

Action – in the classroom, enabling effective development and delivery of lesson plans and resources for use in a classroom setting, using tools for assessment and learning.

Learning objectives for the workshop

- New perspectives and understanding of the sustainability agenda and how to deploy it through a global and local context
- Insight and solutions for real problems or challenges that participants bring
- New tools and principles to experiment with
- Individual capacity development
- Competence in participatory approaches
- Peer support
- Professional and personal development

sazaniassociates

Our Courses

Courses can be tailored to individual key stages and levels or whole school settings.

- Putting the global dimension into ESDGC
- Making it real through curriculum links
- Critical literacy and learning approaches
- Global citizenship and social justice
- Effective professional learning communities
- Exploring global issues through the use of media tools
- Interdependence – Wales, Europe and the World
- Creative curriculum development
- Intercultural understanding through languages

For more detailed information about course details, dates and venues, contact:

marilyn@sazaniassociates.org.uk

Full-day courses cost £100 per person including free resources.

sazaniassociates

About us

Sazani Associates works in partnership with civil society, and local and regional government to promote sustainable livelihoods and challenge global poverty and its consequences. We do this through research into social and environmental justice and developing innovative learning approaches that involve shared experiences with the Global South.

Sazani Associates has registered offices in Wales (UK), Zanzibar (Tanzania) and Belize. We are funded by UKAID through the Department for International Development and by the EU through Europe Aid to support the school and adult and community learning sectors in the development of key competencies in global social and environmental justice to support global learning delivery (also known as ESDGC).

Sazani Associates coordinates the Education for Rural Livelihoods and Food Sovereignty (ERLAFS) network of primary and secondary schools in Wales with curriculum links with schools in Zanzibar.

www.sazaniassociates.org.uk

Other projects and services we provide include:

Global research and technical support consultancy

- Technical advice and support in socio-economic development
- Social impact and strategic environmental assessments
- Social and environmental justice research and development

Training in tools and techniques for sustainable livelihoods

- Participation and social assessment
- Participatory appraisal
- Stakeholder analysis
- Participatory monitoring and evaluation
- Beneficiary assessment
- Sustainability in action

Climate change adaptation and sustainably aware (CASA) scheme

An innovative approach to CSR that enables you – as an individual, organisation, school or company – to develop understanding of the real importance of both local and global action against climate change.

For more information contact:
info@sazaniassociates.org.uk